Executive Removed by Governor Cooper on Charge That he Accepted Rum Bribe.

CANTON, O., May 11.—(INS.)—The hearing in United States commissioner's court here for former Mayor Peter J. Groh, of Dover, charged with con-spiring to violate the federal prohibi-tion laws will be held next Saturday, it was announced today. The hearing was to have been held yesterday but Commissioner Charles Ball postponed it when prosecuting witnesses failed to appear. Groh was ousted from office as mayor of Dover by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper after state prohibition agents charged that he accepted a bribe from them when they osed as bootleggers and asked permission to bring a truckload of liquo through Dover.

Marc Volpaw, assistant U. S. district attorney from Cleveland, was the sole representative of the prosecution when the case was called for hearing yesterday afternoon. Ed Little and John Cole, state dry agents, who were to have appeared as government witnesses, were not present.

Caswell-Runyon Cedar Chests

Here are Cedar Chests that are real attractive pieces of furniture. Fitting for bedroom, reception room or hallway. They are indeed very handsome in splendid two-tone walnut finish. The panels are of genuine walnut veneer of a select graiing. Made of three-quarter inch Tennessee Red Cedar, that produnces a pleasing aroma.

$25.00 On Credit

This beautiful chest is ideal for your home. The exterior is of Walnut Veneer while the interfor is of genuine Tennessee Red Cedar. Fancy Bird's Eye Maple overlays and fiber wood carvings are used as decorations. The special lid with this chest is fitted makes it unnecessary to move from the wall to open the chest.

The delightful aroma of Red Cedar, so pleasant to human beings, is deadly to moth and larvae; not only the testimony of ages, but the recent tests of scientists show clearly the effectiveness of Tennessee Aromatic Red Cedar. The United States Department of Agriculture recently conducted a twoyear test with a Cedar Chest proving that insect pests are routed with certainty by the perfumes of cedar oil, in Red Cedar same as used in Caswell-Runvan Treasure Chests.

NORGE MODEL "300"

B' application of the rotary principle ... the same spinning motion which silently whirls our earth through space ... Norge engineers evolved an exclusive and different compressor (heart of the refrigeration system).

It quickly won supremacy by its performance and economy of operation, longer life, reliability and quietness.

$25.00 Down $15.00 Per Month. It seems incredible, yet is a proven tested fact, that Norge efficiency actually increases as the years roll on, but consumption of electric power grows less. Norge simple mechanism "wears in"-instead of out.

Call at our showrooms and see this modern marvel of refrigeration which has captured the hearts of the thinking housewives of America.

You will find our new model 300, pictured above, of outstanding interest. Its high-grade construction, allied to the lowest price in the history of Norge, form a refrigeration investment which cannot be duplicated.

Things are being made which were never made before, and labor is therefore being emboth sexes. And, too, it not only encourages wholesome exercise through gymnasium and athletic programs, but is worth listening to. Tom Dorgan never got an even break from life. Years ago paralysis seized him and he lost the use of his right arm. But that didn't sour his disposition. He laughed-and learned to draw with his left hand!

Then a bad heart grew worse, and doctors told Tad he couldn't live a month. But still Tad laughed—a sort the manufacture, installation, and upkeep of these are of cackle, it was-a cackle everyone who knew him ticles of daily use employ-thuosands of people, highly loved. And again Tad proved that the spirit is indomitable. He didn't die, but went right on doing his work.

However, Tad had to get into the country. He which attracted him. He had to live on the lower floor of his home, because he couldn't climb the stairs. But death. He never knew when his "dime a dozen" heart, Unemployment Conference into existence. as he called it, would quit him cold-and apparently he didn't care.

The spirit that was Tad carried on, and he made millions laugh the length and breadth of the country with his inimitable drawings, his "slanguage," as he called it, and his irrepressible good humor. In recent years Tad was a mere shadow of himself. He coudn't receive his friends at his home because of his illness- no charge at all except two cents in coin or stamps for but the radio and a telephone kept him in intimate touch with things outside,

Some folks say Tad cheated death for years. That's wrong. Tad never cheated death-he laughed death out of countenance.

It is said that a and Japan. college boy who, with a group of companions, was taking advantage of steerage accommodations for economy, suggested the idea of improving steerage quarters for the benefit of American student travel. His idea has grown far beyond his original conceptions. The onecabin ship, tourist's third and the student tour are some of the familiar phrases that have grown out of the sit-

It is estimated that a half million Americans will make the eastward Atlantic crossing this summer, more than a third of them making the trip purely for pleasure. Whereas a person who had been abroad was considered a rather superior being not more than a decade ago, a trip to Europe is no longer thought of as anything much out of the ordinary. Low rates and high wages have mave it a recognized vacation possible among members of the middle classes who are willing to limit their expenditures for the sake of doing something different.

Travel is the most broadening influence possible. Intelligent travel can establish ideas that study never can. It presents a conception of the unity of the world. The American traveler in Germany may wonder how he ever let hysteria claim his mentality to the extent that it did during the World war. The tourist in Spain, Italy, Norway or any of the European countries will forget the monosyllabic, misleading descriptions of the geography books and will return with a living idea of what influences the citizens of other nations. The traveler who sets out with an idea that everything he sees is going to be inferior to the blessed advantages of his own country had better stay at home and give his travel fund to the association for the protection of blind mice. Americans are becoming a race of globe trotters and the knowledge which they are picking up about other nations will go far toward the establishment of permanent world peace. Understanding is the basis of concord.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 11 .- Although the United ates has not suffered from any general condition of nemployment since the deflation period in 1920-1921, the study of employment conditions then undertaken has been steadily going forward since that time. The president's unemployment conference, called by President Harding at that time, and organized with the then Sectors, stant companions of the street's it were. And a benign gentleman on it were. Officers of high rank in the Russian army reported wounded. Japs are advancing on Ferg Wang Characters. MEMBER American Newspaper Publishers' Associa been steadily going forward since that time. President Hoover remains its chairman, in name Entered at the postoffice at East Liverpool, Ohio, as at least, and is reported to retain more than a nominal flip talk but maidens with a patina nterest in its functions.

The active work of the conference of late has been chiefly that of its committee on recent changes. This committee, like the original unemployment conference, is a volunteer group of leaders in industry, labor, banking, transportation, and industrial research. It operates by cooperation with other business groups, whose researches are made available to the committee, and published from time to time as reports from the commit-

A somewhat similar report on the building trades was recently adopted by the committee on recent changes, and others may be expected from time to time.

The purpose of this continuing work is to assemble, in official reports, all available facts about the employment of labor in the United States, and to study the facts with a hope of being able to meet any crisis in unemployment which may arise. Interested experts dulging only monosyllable grunts. The radio industry is another development of a new sphere of employment. The radio may to a minor ex-tent replace some musical instruments, but essentially it is something new and has opened a new field of employment. The wider the distribution of employment over varied fields of activity, the less abrupt will be any deflation, in the belief of the economists. Well, in the first place, you never | There are spaces of considerable size, have a cold unless you are run down and bone that is spongy in its nain health. Of course, I do not mean you never take cold unless you are in teh midst of a terrible decline.

As a matter of fact, you have been unusually well for months, and then suddenly you develop a hard cold. But there must have been a few days when you were below par.

Loss of sleep is a real factor. Excessive fatigue is another. Tired people are always in danger if disease germs are lurking in the neighborhood. The worst of it is, too, those unfriendly germs are on watch in every neighborhood.

There appears to be some sort of a relationship between constipation and the onset of a cold. When there is fermentation in the bowel, with the bacterial growth that always accompanies it, there is direct lowering of the vitality. This permits the causative agent of the cold to break through the defenses of the body. The sneezing begins almost at once.

Following an infection of this sort there is more or less fever. The appetite declines, the sleep is disturbed. and, all in all, the victim feels mean

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

BY W. S. COUSINS,

(I. N. S. Financial Editor.) NEW YORK, May 11.—Most of the specialties in the stock list forged ahead in the week-end market, under the stimulous of a strong buying demand from all parts of the country. The pools whipped up their favorites a point or two, and upward moves continued in the City Gas and Electric Light stocks, on reports of good pro gress in the formation of a gigantic amalgamation of utility properties. The week-end business reviews blamed the weather man for most of the backwardness noted in wholesale and retail trade, at the same time pointing to the enormous increase in the operations and earnings of the representative steel, motor and manufacturing enterprises. Nothing happened to show whether Friday's easing up on the money market was a in the pan" or a permanent plane stocks have been soaring be-cause of American buying. What do money situation was concerned.

United Corporation was still in the center of the stage for the specialties. The stock pushed along to 75% for a new gain of 3 points the rapid turnover making a harvest for the professionals and the brokerage houses. Consoldiated Gas hung up a new high record at 118, equivalent to 238 for the old stock, and Columbia Gas and Electric also joined aggressively in the forward movement.

BORAHS INVITED TO WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(INS) Senator and Mrs. William E. Borah will be dinner guests at the White House tomorrow.

Ordinarily this would merely make an item for the society column, but the politicians of Capitol Hill see a deeper significance just at this time. A couple of days ago, Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, the Republican whip of the senate, publicly branded the Idaho senator as a "pseudo-Republican" because of his vote against the president on the debenture plan in the farm re lief bill. The taunt nettled Borah considerably.

Anyway, the White House invitation followed, and the politicians ascribe it to a desire on Mr. Hoover's part to show Washington that he doesn't subscribe to Fess' at-

SUSPECT HELD IN OHIO DEATH

Gilboa Divorcee's Murder Case Again in Limelight.

OTTAWA, O., May 11. - (INS) -Putnam county's most sensational murder case, the slaying of Mrs. Mary Hemler, comely 20-year-old divorcee, whose body was found floating in a creek near her home at Gilboa Sept. 12, last and which has remained unsolved since, was catapulted into the limelight again today, when announcement was made by authorities that a "suspect" had been arrested at Mans-

Secrecy surrounded the capture of the suspect. His name was given here as Stanley Licklak. He was arrested in Mansfield, with two companions, two days ago and charged with being a suspicious person. His age, or how he is said to have been connected with the crime, was not given. The body of Mrs. Hemler, when recovered from creek, was bruised and the neck had bene broken. The coroner here returned a verdict of "murafter conducting an autopsy, which revealed there was no water in the lungs.

At the time of the murder, several persons were arrested for complicity in the slaying, but no charges could be substantiated.

Cuyler, Root Hit for Circuit; Babe Gets No. Six.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The Yankees and Cubs, leaders in their reand Cubs, leaders in their re-spective leagues, are taking a short cut to Pennantville via the home run route this season. The Yanks always have favored the hit and-walk play, but the Cubs are just beginning to realize its full benefits Chicago has a home run total of 19 for the season this morning, only one less than the four-base total of the Hugmen, perennial leaders in the home-run marathon.

The Cubs passed the Giants' home would break the league home-run rec-ord if they could play regularly at the Polo grounds with its short left

In swamping the Giants, 11 to 4, the Cubs clouted thirteen hits for twenty-one bases and swelled their team batting average to .304. They have lost only one game in the east.

The Yankees, undefeated in the west, chalked up their eighth straight fourth consecutive victory of the preswin in trouncing Detriot, 10 to 5, and ent campaign yesterday afternoon at now enjoy a lead of a game and a Rogers when they finished ahead by half over the Athletics, who lost. Babe Ruth, with his right wrist practically useless, smacked homer No. 6 and now is only one down to Brother Gehrig. The Babe has hit safely in straight last season and their four Combs in eleven.

Meusel and Heilmann also hit for the circuit. The Yanks have hit six- nine with the exception of the last teen homers in their last eight frame when he weakened and got into Ohio's two entries in the American Association baseball league, namely. Columbus and Toledo, are slipping, and slipping fast. The Mud Hens are in sixth place and the Senators just behind them, in seventh. Yesterday's was no exception to what has been going on for some time in the ranks of the Bucks, but Toledo, for the second consecutive day, dumped over the bucket and gave out another surprise when they downed the Kansas City Blues, who have been holding first place very securely, for two straight games. The score was 7-to-2 and puts the Cowboys down in the second berth, with Minneapolis taking the lead.

The Senators dropped their second straight game to the Milwaukee Brewers yesterday, 7 to 3, for their seventh consecutive defeat. Eddleman, doing the hurling for the winners, held the Lieboldmen down with only one run until the seventh inning, when the on over Billy Bucks staged almost a feeble rally and lightweight (10).

And, naturally, those two schools are confident there respective throwers will better it. Both Snowden and Sidinger are said to have been heaving the spear consistently around 160 feet in practice. It is improbable that any of the dash records will tumble unless some unusually dark nag comes out of nowhere. Gaines, Columbiana colored ten consecutive games and Ear! conquests to date gives them a record star, had a field day back in 1919 when he ran the 100 in 10 seconds, the 220 in 22 seconds and the 440 in 52 seconds and it's going to take a sensa-

Another Wellsville record is the oldest. That was made by Hjerpe in 1915 when he high jumped five feet, 11 inches, and it's quite likely that it's another mark that will withstand the wear and tear of competition for

"Yes," he murmured, contemplating the simple handle, she ought to have a pearl-handled one. All heroines should-

He pricked up his ears. He sat listening for a moment, then hurriedly blew out the candle and lay down as if composing himself for sleep. In a few moments his deep, even breathing would have convinced any casual listener that he was in slumber land. The noises overhead had subsided into an intermittent squeaking and grinding, so there was little to disturb him.

A clear chime fell on the uneasy stillness of the house reaching Hannan's room in tones subdued by heavy walls. The chime died away. An interval of silence came. Then a sound, much too faint to disturb a sleeping man, rasped lightly on the darkness.

Ever so slightly the door squeaked on its hinges. Muffled footfalls approached Hannan's bed. But still Hannan appeared to hear nothing. Far from being disturbed by the footsteps, he was talking in his sleep.

"Funny about that clock. Never stops — Yes, she ought to have a pearl-handed one. Hope Curry swallows that wooden cigar. No, Peters, the great Horace never said anything like that. What's happened to Old Blighty? In a terrible rage over something. I knew all the time she wasn't a pickpocket." A few prolonged intakes of breath, drowsy mumble, then in a clear, wideawake voice: "Careful, Pelly, I wouldn't come a step closer if I were you. I can hear you, even if I can't see you. My ears have a pretty keen trigger sense."

A mutter of vexation sounded in the darkness.

"Sit down, Pelty, but don't come any closer," Hannan added pleasantly. "What you need is a thorough fumigating. Beats everything how tobacco sticks to a fellow's You are a walking advertisement for your own brand of cigarettes. And you walk so softly, Pelly. I suppose you didn't want to disturb my slumber. Awfully considerate of you. No, don't move, Pelly. This pistol may go off."

With that Hannan reached over and lighted the candle. Mallingham, his face darker than usual, stood a few paces aside.

"I suppose you've come to shoot me again, eh, Pelly? It's getting monotonous. Why do people want to shoot holes in me?"

"Don't be a fool, Martenet." Mallingham spoke gruffly as he seated himself. "I don't want to shoot you. I've decided you aren't important enough. I just dropped in to see how you were getting on.' "That's sweet of you, Pelly." Hannan sat on the side of the bed and dangled the pistol playfully. "So different from the cold shoulder and the gelid eye you gave me once. By the way, Pelly, guess why I pre tended to be asleep when you walked in. I wanted to listen." "Listen to what?"

"Your shoes.
"My-what?"

"Your shoes, Pelly. I was curious to know if they

"What sort of drivel are you talking?"
"I discovered they don't creak," said Hannan soberly. "So that's that."

"And suppose they had?"

"Well, that would be telling. By the way, did you see anything of my bodyguard as you walked in?"
"Who? Oh, you mean John Breck. No, he wasn't at "Who? Oh, you mean John Breck. No, he wasn't at his post. He must have been called away." Mallingliam regarded him silently for a moment. "Martenet, I didn't come here just to inquire about your health." Hannan gave a mock sigh. "Now you spoil it. I thought this was to be the beginning of a beautiful friendship. Now you tell me you came here with an ulterior motive. Vell, let's have it."

Mallingham seemed to choose his words carefully. "I wish you would appease my curiosity on one point. You dropped out of sight in New York shortly after your arrival there. You turn up here at Valhalla Notch with a wound in your shoulder. How come?"

"Oh, that's simple enough. I was pitched headlong into a mass of mysteries the moment I arrived in New York. I had an idea the solution was t obe found at Valhalla Notch. That's why I came here. Anything

'Yes, where does Miss Lane come in?"

"Wish I knew!" said Hannan with heart-felt sincerity. Mallingham gave him a sharp look. "Has any one told you what happened at dinner tonight?"

"No. Hope Peters didn't choke on a fishbone."
"No. nothing as unexciting as that."

"Then what—" Hannan suddenly jerked himself straight. "Did anything happen to—to Miss Lane?" Mallingham's lips curled in a sneer. "No, nothing has happened to Miss Lane. Providence protects fools and pretty women. It isn't such a prodigious task, for the two are often one."

"What happened, then?" "I don't think I shall tell you, after all. You are still an invalid, and the news may excite you. There is another topic I want to discuss with you. Last time we referred to the subject, you told me you had not idea how the iron door may be opened safely."
"And I haven't," said Hannan flatly. "Even if I had

I wouldn't tell you. Mallingham regarded him searchingly. "I'm inclined to believe you," he said coldly. "My first impression was correct. You are just a bumptious fool. Good-

"Sweet dreams," said Hannan. He grinned as Malling ham walked out. For a little while he sat alone and then the door opened again to admit Viola.

Viola gave Hannan a keen, anxious glance. "How is the shoulder?" "Better," said Hannan, "but it needs the sunshine of your smile to heal it completely."

"Well, I'm afraid that's about the only treatment it will get from now on. Dr. Speck is gone. Where?" 'Gone?

She told him. She also related what had happened to Runty Dick. Hannan sat up straighter and straighter.
"That sounds bad. Then there is an actual menace behind the iron door?"

"We knew there was, didn't we?" "Yes, but I wondered— Goodness! Runty Duck and Dr. Speck both! There must be something terrible behind that door. Has anybody tried to find out what happened to Runty and the doctor?" "No. After what's happened everybody seems to look upon the iron door as a sort of death trap. Nobody shows any inclination to investigate. Besides, they think that the fates of Ruty Duck and Doctor Speck are already settled and that nothing can be accomplished. Anyway, they've had other things to think about since Something even stranger happened at dinner. She paused for a moment. "Hannan, do you believe in ghosts?"

"Gracious! What's coming now? Have you seen one?'

"No, that's just it. I heard one. The others did, too. While Hannan's eyes grew wider and wider she related what had happened at the dinner table. He sat silent, staring at her, for a long time after she had finished.
"Spookiest thing I ever heard of," he remarked in a dull tone.

"That's what it was-spooky. No other word de scribes it."

"It was a human voice? You are sure of that?" "Absolutely. Human footsteps, too. And Mr. Malling ham said afterward that the—er—ghost stood so close to him that his hand touched Mr. Mallingham's sleeve. Once, when he leaned backward, he could even feel his breath. Oh, it was real enough-all except the invisible part. And then there was another strange thing. There were two candles on the table—a red and a green one. While I sat looking at them, the green one faded away No, it was no hallucination. It actually faded out of sight. But the flame remained. It hung suspended in the air. B-r-r! It was terribly creepy."

Hannan blinked his eyes as if doubting whether he was quite awake. "The candle vanished-but the flame was still there? Are you sure?" Yes, and sane, too. That's what you are doubting,

Isn't it-my sanity? (To Be Continued) THE GUMPS
